1.) History of Idle No More

- Idle No More is a grassroots movement with groups spread across Canada with solidarity around the globe.
- Idle No More is a call to action for a
 - Resurgence of our Indigenous nationhood and sovereignty
 - Defend the land, water, and air.
- Started in Saskatchewan by Sheelah McLean, Sylvia McAdam, Jess Gordon, and Nina Wilson in response to federal legislation in Ottawa that would threaten Indigenous nationhood and territories (See attached list of Bills).
- Ignited grassroots action through rallies, flash-mobs, marches, teach-ins, and gatherings to stand-up to government threats & actions.
- The people, lands, waters, and air will be affected and thus our nations will be Idle No More.

Resurgence

1. A continuing after interruption; a renewal.

2. A restoration to use, acceptance, activity, or vigor; a revival.

” By asking “How will your ancestors and future generations recognize you as Indigenous?” I offer a challenge for us to begin re-envisioning and practicing everyday acts of resurgence.” – Jeff Corntassel, <http://decolonization.org/index.php/des/article/view/18627>

So...What stories will you share today? What word will you teach your children in your language?
Who will you go hunting with and who will you share it with?

Sovereignty

- 1 .Supreme power or authority.
2. The authority of a state to govern itself or another state

2.) Current Government Bills in Plain English

The Conservative government under Prime Minister Stephen Harper has passed or proposed a set of legislation directly related to First Nations sovereignty and territories without First Nations consent. Below is a chart explaining each of the legislation by name and analyses of impacts:

Legislation	Date To Be Passed	Impacts
Bill C-38 Budget Omnibus #1		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This 450 page bill changed more than 70 federal Acts without proper • Parliamentary debate. • This bill dramatically changes Canada’s federal environmental legislation, • removing many protections for water, fish, and the environment. • The changes were made without consulting First Nations.
Bill C-45 Budget Omnibus Bill #2	December 12th, 2012	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This second bill also exceeds 450 pages, and changed 44 federal laws, again without proper Parliamentary debate. • This bill removes many fish habitat protections and fails to recognize Aboriginal commercial fisheries. • Changes to the Navigable Waters Protection Act reduce the number of lakes and rivers where navigation and federal environmental assessment is required from 32,000 to just 97 lakes, and from 2.25 million to just 62 rivers. • This means a shocking 99% of Canada’s waterways lost their protection for navigation and federal enviro assessment purposes. • These changes were made without consulting First Nations
Bill C-27 First Nations Financial Transparency Act		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This bill imposes standards on First Nations governments that far exceed those for municipal, provincial and federal officials in other jurisdictions. • It requires First Nation-owned businesses (unlike non-Aboriginal businesses) to publicly report income and expenses, thus undermining competitiveness. • It adds additional bureaucracy to the existing requirement that each First Nation provide Ottawa over 150 financial

		reports each year, contrary to the recommendations of Canada's Auditor General and the Treasury Board. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • These changes are based on a common, racist assumption that First Nations' officials are all corrupt – an assumption that is factually and statistically incorrect.
The First Nations Private Property Ownership Act (Proposed)	TBD	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The government intends to introduce this legislation, but it hasn't yet. • The Act would permit private property ownership within reserve boundaries. • Individual bands would be able to adopt the legislation on an optional basis. • A private property system is contrary to the goal of many First Nations to protect Aboriginal lands as a collective resource. • The Act would allow the small existing Aboriginally-owned land base to be sold to non-Aboriginal buyers, forever losing these lands as Aboriginal lands. • This is particularly a risk for impoverished communities who may be forced by economic desperation to sell their own lands for short term gain. • First Nations need more options to use their lands for economic development purposes, but this simple 'one size fits all' fix is dangerous. The government should instead work with First Nations to address real self-sufficiency by ensuring Aboriginal control over resources extracted in their traditional lands, • and addressing educational, health and other social development.
Bill S-2 Family Homes on Reserve and Matrimonial Interests or Right Act		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • There are currently no laws that determine how property on reserve is divided up when married couples divorce. This bill addresses that "gap", but does so without recognizing First Nations' jurisdiction over reserve property. • There are many issues associated with matrimonial property on reserve, including violence against women, housing availability, self-government rights, capacity to develop and enforce laws, and access to justice. These issues have been disregarded in the interests of a "simple fix". • The provisional laws in this legislation will infringe on First Nations' inherent self-government rights. The legislation will also make it difficult for people to ensure the laws are enforced, as they would have to go to a provincial court, which can be difficult due to distance and expense.
Bill S-6 First Nations		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This Bill provides an alternative elections regime under the Elections Act		Indian Act. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Although this will affect all First Nations, there was no consultation about it. • It is positive that this bill allows First Nations to opt into an alternative regime for elections. The Minister can, however, simply impose an election process against the will of a First Nation community, and at the discretion of the Minister (if the Minister decides there has been a problem with an election). • This can lead to political interference with First Nations elections.

Bill S-8 Safe Drinking Water for First Nations Act		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This Act will allow Canada to over-ride First Nation by-laws, BCRs and policies that protect safe drinking water. • The Minister will now have the power to require First Nations to charge fees to members for receiving clean water. • The Act allows the government to annul or destroy Aboriginal rights and treaty rights “to the extent necessary to ensure safe drinking water.” This is a limited power but is concerning in principle, especially when the government was not able to provide any justification why it needed this power.
Bill C-428 Indian Act Amendment and Replacement Act		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This is a private members bill that is a substantial piece of legislation which would impose sweeping changes to the Indian Act. Yet there has been no proper consultation with First Nations about it. • First Nations support the need to abolish the Indian Act. Any discussion about legislation to replace the Indian Act, however, needs to fully involve First Nations. Yet there has been no substantial consultation on this bill.
Bill S-207 An Act to amend the Interpretation Act		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This Bill says that no legislation will be interpreted as annulling or destroying Aboriginal or treaty rights. • However, if another Act showed a clear intention of destroy such rights, this Act would not prevent that from happening.
Bill S-212 First Nations Self-Government Recognition Bill		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • This legislation has been introduced for the fourth time. • This Act would make it possible for First Nations to take on much of the authority currently given to provinces (such as fisheries, wildlife and habitat management, education, child protection and adoption, and health care). • If the government intends to support or proceed with this Act, however, there must be consultation with First Nations as the impact on First Nation communities will be profound.

3.) History of Treaties and Definition/Spirit of Sovereignty

Pre-confederation treaties, numbered treaties, and non-treaty areas. In this section we recommend contact people from within the community or nation to present on local context of treaties. For example:

- Some areas of Canada has what are called "pre-confederation treaties" that were made prior to Canada becoming a country.
- Others, such as the "Numbers Treaties" were formed through Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Yukon, Northwest Territories, and a section of British Columbia.
- BC is largely still in question due to unresolved treaty and Aboriginal title. The federal final agreement process (also known as modern treaty process or comprehensive claims process) has created two modern treaties, with a few up for vote in the coming year.

4.) History of Eradication

Indian Act, Residential Schools, Sixties Scoop, Child Family Services, Racism and colonialism - Attacks on our peoples spirit

5.) Indigenous Laws, Creators Laws, Natural Law -- Sustainability Solutions

These will be presented as they relate to your community/Nation. Sharing our knowledge will help lead to our resurgence and sovereignty.

6.) Present Resurgence Plans

Idle No More Sovereignty dialogue. Idle No More Sovereignty dialogue N2.pptx and Community Coordination Plan community coordination plan.docx

7.) Small Group Dialogue

Use of Open Space Technology is a great way to have many people participate in providing discussion and ideas "Open Space is an interactive process -- participants meet in concurrent and overlapping mini-discussions around a theme or an issue, across departmental, hierarchal or historically opposite lines. The cross-pollination of moving from group to group and topic to topic in a non-linear way allows participants to jump quickly from familiar ways of thinking into innovation and action".

The Coordinator will record a summary of the meeting to circulate to all those in attendance. These participants will then share with community via teach in or community meeting.

The community / Nation will select runners (some communities have chosen to rotate runners) to present the communities action plan at the National Forum. The National forum will be ongoing

Special Thank you to Khelsilem Rivers (Sxwchalten) for his assistance and support.
